

The Daily Office Advent 2016

Happy New Year!

Advent begins with Evening Prayer I of Advent Sunday on Saturday 26th November, and this marks the beginning of the liturgical year. During most days in Advent we begin the office from a selection of hymns for advent, use the Psalter for the psalms and from the reading onwards follow the proper of seasons. In addition to that there are of course various saints' days.

The future of these pages

I have been compiling the lists of the pages for Morning, Evening and Night Prayer for nearly 10 years (since February 2007) since when they also appeared on the Marist Way Website. This grew out of providing weekly page listings for our parish (Our Lady Queen of Heaven in Frimley, Surrey). I also can remember how confused I got with page turning, back in the 1980's when I began saying Morning and Evening Prayer so I produced what I would have found useful when I started.

Times have changed over the last ten years. A big change has been the rise of Universalis with a version of the office on computer and then on all of the various mobile devices. For anyone who has not seen this, the daily office is presented seamlessly with all of the correct psalms, antiphons, readings and concluding prayers for each day without having to jump around a book. You can even select your diocese and so get all of your local saint's days. I now have the whole daily office for a year at a time in e-book format on a Kindle which fits neatly into a jacket pocket.

In the early days of these page listings, we received positive feedback and a very large number of webpage hits. The webmaster of Marist Way, Paul Harker, and I would like to know if these current page listings still serve a purpose and get an idea of how many people still use them. We will keep going, but only if there is still a demand. So please give us your feedback either email the webmaster or myself jezpreece@hotmail.com
